HIT WITH THE TRADE

The STROLLERS

"THE STROLLERS" is a new novel which the trade delight in selling, because it is on a subject of which no previous novel has dealt, and because they say it is one of the most beautifully illustrated and printed books issued this Spring.

"'The Strollers' are just what the title implies—a band of players going across country in the early 40's by caravan. The leading lady of the troupe is young, beautiful and the daughter of a gifted actress-mother with a painful history. Besides this leading lady, who is the heroine of the story, the caravan carries a fatherly manager, the necessary old woman, 'heavy' gentleman and comedian and two giggling, flirtatious sisters of the soubrette type. The party acquires a new member, a refugee soldier of the French, handsome, interesting, the eventual hero of the book. He goes along as playwright and capitalist. They take their way from New York to New Orleans, and there the story works to a logical and not a tame conclusion. Mr. Isham's description of the theatre caravan life is graphic and attractive. His use of all his material is skilful."—N. Y. World.

Do Not Overlook

ALIENS

By Mary Tappan Wright

IT IS a novel that will almost surely, in our opinion, force its way to the top. It describes the South and Southern people as seen in Northern eyes, and it will make talk in the South. But its great point is that it is a tremendously good story and deals with real, flesh and blood people.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY have just ready "Dorothy South," a love story which deals with events in Virginia just "before the war," by George Cary Eggleston, author of "A Carolina Cavalier," now in its 17th thousand. The romance is not only characteristic of Mr. Eggleston's vigorous and direct style, but also dramatic and entertaining. The book has six illustrations by C. D. Williams, and is attractively bound.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish at an early date an elementary history of the United States, entitled "Our Country's Story," by Eva March Tappan, Ph.D., a prominent teacher in the high school, Worcester, Mass. Miss Tappan has written a simple, interesting and connected account of the course of events in the history of our country, admirably adapted as a stepping-stone to Fiske's "History of the United States," or to any other grammar school history.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS are about to publish a volume entitled "Fragments in Science and Philosophy," containing twenty-six papers, constituting all of the lesser publications of Professor J. Mark Baldwin, of Princeton, one of the most distinguished of the younger Philosophers of this country. They will publish at once a Play-goer's edition of Richard Harding Davis's "Soldiers of Fortune." Later in the spring they will bring out George W. Cable's new story, "Bylow Hill," a study of character in New England surroundings, that is now appearing in The Atlantic Monthly.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will bring out late in the spring in the Badminton Library a work on "Motor Cars," written by Alfred Harmsworth, Sir Henry Thompson and others. Early in the summer they will publish "A Girl of Virginia," a love story, the scene of which is laid in the University of Virginia, by Lucy Meacham Thruston, whose first novel, "Mistress Brent," has passed into a fourth edition. They have also in press "In the Country God Forgot," a story of the uncultured Southwest of to-day, by Frances Charles; "The Heroine of the Strait," a romance of Detroit in the time of Pontiac, by Mary Catherine Crowley, author of "A Daughter of New France," with illustrations by C. Grunwald; "In the Eagle's Talon," a romance of the Louisiana Purchase, by Sheppard Stevens, with illustrations by A. Russell; also, "The God of Things," a novel of modern Egypt, by Florence Brooks Whitehouse, who also has made the illustrations for the book.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have made arrangements to publish a series of ten volumes to be known as "The Sportsman's Library." Each of the volumes will be prepared by a writer, or group of writers, thoroughly in sympathy with the work and specially fitted for his special subject. The series will be under the editorial direction of Caspar Whitney, the editor of Outing, and for many years sporting editor of Harper's Weekly. The illustrations will be numerous and from well-known artists. The following volumes are now in press: "The Deer Family," by Theodore Roosevelt, T. S. Van Dyke and H. G. Stone, illustrated by Carl Rungius; "Upland Game Birds," by Edwyn Sandys, illustrated by Louis Agassiz Fuertes, A. B. Frost and J. O. Nugent; and "Salmon and Trout," by Dean Sage and William C. Harris, illustrated by A. B. Frost and others. Further volumes will include articles on the bear family, water fowl, wild fowl, taxidermy, etc., cougar, wild cat, wolf, fox, etc., tuna, tarpon, etc., bass, perch, pickerel, etc. It is expected that the entire series of ten volumes will be ready within two years. Two volumes are to be issued this spring, and the others will follow as rapidly as possible.

Mrs. Atherton in an explanatory note says "it was my original intention to write a biography of Alexander Hamilton in a more flexible manner than is customary with that method of reintroducing the dead to the living, but without impinging upon the territory of fiction. But after a visit to the British and Danish West Indies in search of the truth regarding his birth and ancestry, and after a wider acquaintance with the generally romantic character of his life, to say nothing of the personality of this most endearing and extraordinary of all our public men, the instinct of the novelist proved too strong."

The author of the "Life of Stephen A. Douglas" has attempted a somewhat more original task than has fallen to most of the writers in the "Riverside Biographical Series." No life of Douglas has been published since the Civil War, and the three lives published about the time of his death were of the nature of campaign biographies. So, except for the references to Douglas in histories, no estimate of him has been made from the point of view of a later generation. The author has nevertheless endeavored to make the reader understand Douglas the man, and has not been content merely to try and fix his place in history.

This book is not merely a reprint of "The life and work of John Ruskin" in 2 vols., published in 1893. "The whole has been rewritten," says Mr. Collingwood, "on somewhat different lines. I have been able to add much new biographical detail from various sources. . . . With Mr. Ruskin's leave, I have given a number of letters hitherto unpublished, and the story, unfinished before, is now brought to its close." A fine photogravure portrait of Ruskin forms the frontispiece.

This book has grown out of an attempt by the author to make a revised edition of his "Friends worth knowing" published nearly twenty years ago. This process, however, soon involved so many changes, called for by increase of information in this ever-advancing department of knowledge, that it seemed best to cast the whole matter, old and new, into an entirely fresh form, with illustrations, photographed from life, and a new title.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 29, 1902.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, should reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

THE NET PRICE SYSTEM AND ITS RELATION TO AUTHORS.

THE reform movement in the booktrade has been fortunate in that it has had practically everything in its favor, and has met with no active opposition from the two sources that at the start seriously threatened the reform movement in England, and that, fifty years ago, actually made reform impossible in that country. We refer to the general public and to the authors. Thanks to the prevailing conservative element in the American Publishers' Association, the interests of the bookbuying public were kept in mind from the start; and the retail prices were adjusted so that no hostile criticism was possible. In this adjustment of prices under the new conditions it was inevitable that in a few exceptional instances prices must be slightly raised, just as it was a foregone conclusion that prices in general must be lowered, so that, on an average, the change has been a benefit to the bookbuyer, although in the exceptional cases this sometimes hardly appears to be true.

The author being more directly interested in the welfare of the booktrade than any other agent, realized years ago that under the old conditions his chances for compensation were growing steadily more uncertain. He was, therefore, unlike his English brother, ready for any change that gave promise of an improvement in his condition. That a fair proportion of authors are heartily in sympathy with the reform movement inaugurated by the American Publishers' Association and the American Booksellers' Association may be gathered from the following article that appeared in the February issue of the American Author. We print the article in full, refraining from correcting certain statements that either minimize or exaggerate certain facts well known to our constituents:

It would seem to be of the utmost importance for authors to consider, whether it is for their interest to allow their books to be sold as merchandise, regardless of price, or whether they should establish a price and cause that price to be maintained.

The right of authors to fix the prices at which their books shall be sold, and to cause those prices to be maintained, cannot be questioned, since the federal copyright laws grant them an absolute monopoly in the manufacture and sale of their books, during the life of the copyright. The only considerations that should have weight in deciding this matter are those of expediency and self-interest. Which policy will yield the best returns to them? Having decided this matter, the proper attitude for authors to assume toward a net price system will be apparent.

In considering this question, it is necessary to distinguish between a new book, which is the creation of a single mind, and for which there is no known demand, on the one hand, and common articles of merchandise on the other hand.

The demand for articles of food and clothing, and for the common necessities of life, as coal for heating, oil for lighting, etc., is constant and comparatively well known. The supply of such commodities is practically unlimited, and is, or should be, governed only by the demand. Writers on political economy early recognized the law of supply and demand, and they urged that no artificial restraint should be put upon the natural operation of this law. Indeed the wisdom of this policy has become so apparent, that both federal and state authorities have sought to forbid, by statutes, the forming of combinations for the purpose of limiting the supply of common necessities and forcing prices above a natural level.

On the other hand, there is no natural demand for new and unknown books. Even Solomon, with all his wisdom, lamented that, "Of the making of books there is no end." But as long as civilization advances, as long as human interest and knowledge broaden and deepen, so long will new books continue to multiply; and the proportion in which they multiply will be found to correspond precisely with the advancement of civilization, and the broadening and deepening of human knowledge and human interest.

The rule that governs the multiplication of books is perhaps analogous to the rule that governs the multiplication of municipal laws. In a primitive state of society only a few laws are necessary; but as civilization advances, it is necessary to differentiate in defining the rights and immunities of citizenship, and municipal laws are multiplied accordingly.

From the above it would appear that the field for authorship is constantly broadening, and that no author need feel discouraged because so many books are being published. One has only to thoroughly master his subject, and then write with care. Work done in this way will be sure to find appreciative readers, if properly brought to their attention.

But can the author of such a book hope to market it successfully as a piece of general merchandise? No publisher is willing to spend much money in advertising a special book; and no general merchant is willing to handle a book for which there is not a ready demand, so that he can turn it into money within a few days, or a few weeks at the outside. Indeed, general advertising cannot help the sale of a special book to any great extent. Persons who buy special books are not influenced by such general statements as usually characterize publishers' advertisements; while newspaper critics and reviewers, having little or no knowledge of the subject, will either mention it in general terms, or, failing to appreciate it, will condemn it and try to kill its sale. Such a book can be marketed only through professional booksellers, who put it on their shelves and show it to persons interested in the general subject, or who, familiar with descriptive catalogues, will interest a prospective customer in the book, and take their chances in ordering a copy for him.

It was for this reason that the profession of bookselling was long ago established in every civilized country; and in no country today is the trained bookseller more keenly appreciated or more thoroughly protected than in scientific Germany.

No one, who observes the millions of dollars that are being annually poured into the treasuries of our great universities and special schools, can doubt that special books will continue to multiply and that the demand for professional booksellers will continue to increase from year to year. As a matter of fact, few general merchants, or department stores, handle new books as general merchandise for profit. Most of them put in a large stock of cheap reprints, and then add 250 copies each of three or four of the most popular-selling new-copyrighted novels. These they buy at the largest jobbers' quantity discount; and they sell them often at cost or less, to attract to their stores customers who will buy the cheap reprints in large quantities. These reprints yield a handsome profit to the department stores; but, having passed the limits of the copyright law, they yield not a cent of profit to their authors.

The effect of this practice has been to discredit the local booksellers, who, having paid at least 10 per cent. more than the department stores asked for new novels, were unable to meet competition. Thus the booksellers, having lost most of their customers through this unfair competition, have abandoned the book business, or they have left cheap clerks to close out the books, while they have put in stationery, wallpapers, art and picture frames, articles that yield a living profit.

When the leading publishers noted this fact, they realized that, by allowing such a condition to continue they were "killing the goose" from which they derived their "golden eggs." They organized the American Publishers' Association, and established the net price system.

It is confidently asserted that, if the reform movement had not been undertaken some two years ago, which resulted in the net price system, more than half the booksellers now in the business would already have abandoned it. This would certainly have been a calamity for authors as well as for publishers, for the reason that comparatively few general merchants, in dry-goods stores and department stores, handle books more than two or three months in a year, approaching the holiday season; and even then they carry only cheap reprints of standard books, and a few new-copyrighted novels.

From what has been said it must be apparent that authors of special books and authors of new-copyrighted novels, who have not yet gained great popularity, cannot hope to market their books through general stores and without the aid of booksellers. It would seem that these two classes of authors may and rightfully should insist on having their books published under the net price system.

If any class of authors could market their books as general merchandise, through department stores, and without the aid of booksellers, it would be that limited class of very successful authors of new-copyrighted novels, that have sold up into the hundreds of thousands, and whose books are in such general demand that they can be sold on the name of the author.

But such authors really have less use for a publisher than for booksellers. Such authors could take their manuscripts to a manufacturer and have their books made, without the assistance of a publisher. A competent sales agent or manager could be employed, at a moderate salary, to attend to the advertising, and to place the books with great jobbers of dry-goods, who in turn would sell them to all department stores and dry-goods stores throughout the country, that handle books.

It is said that more than three hundred thousand copies of "The Crisis," by Winston Churchill, were sold within the first six months after it was published. Is it probable that the name of the publisher contributed in any degree to the sale of this book by an author so deservedly popular? It is certainly interesting to speculate as to whether Mr. Churchill could not have realized $50,000, or indeed, $100,000 more from the sale of this book by employing at a moderate salary a competent publication manager, such as is employed by first-class publishers, to attend to the business.

Again, it is not improbable that an author, so well established as Mr. Churchill, would have no difficulty in placing his manuscript with two or three first-class publishers. If competition by merchants, in the reduction of retail prices, is thought to stimulate sales, it is probable that more competition would stimulate sales still more. Publishers are so anxious to pick "winners" that it is probable that the best of them would be glad to pick a half or a third of a "sure winner." Under such a system the retail price would be limited only by the mechanical cost of the book, plus the author's royalty. As the department stores now compete with each other in the sale of books, and often sell at cost or less, so two or three publishers, by issuing the same book, would, of course, sell it at a profit at first, until the first cost of production had been recovered with profit; then as competition increased the competing publishers would naturally cut their prices closer and closer, until the book would finally be sold at nearly what it cost the publishers to produce it. Under such circumstances a new-copyrighted novel, now published at $1.50, might reach the reading public at about 50 cents.

If the cutting of retail prices stimulate sales, it would seem proper for publishers, as well as booksellers, to compete in cutting prices. The only interest for authors is to secure the greatest number of sales, on which they will be paid a royalty.

Of the two plans suggested for very popular authors, it would seem likely that the first or personal agent would yield best returns to such authors.

However, the writer confesses a preference for the old-fashioned method of selecting a responsible publisher and placing the manuscript with him for publication at a given price, with a royalty based upon the established retail price.

As long as the publisher continues to make a fair profit, he will continue to advertise and push the sale of the book. The same is equally true of the bookseller. But as soon as the retail price is cut below the profit line the dealer ceases to re-order it, and, the "craze" having died out, the publisher is powerless to continue its sale. This reduces the life of the book to one or two years, at the outside; and it would seem to work injustice to the best of authors, as well as to those who have not yet succeeded in writing a popular book.

In England publishers and authors have come to realize that a good book should have a permanent sale, and they are agitating the desirability of a permanent copyright law, in order than an author and his heirs and assigns may be permanently protected in the enjoyment of the fruits of his labor. But it will be useless to perpetuate the copyright of fiction, if its price is to continue to be cut for advertising purposes by department stores, as has been done in recent years, since it is impossible to keep a book long on the market, unless it yields a profit to dealers.

The leading American publishers seem to be coming to a full realization of this fact, for they have formed an association and established a net price system.

It is said that a few publishers are still holding back, with the hope of selling their books to booksellers, and then inducing department stores to order the books in large quantities, and "cut and shave" them for advertising purposes. But it is probable that this cannot be continued much longer, as the booksellers of the country have formed a powerful association which they are enthusiastically supporting; and they have formed a compact, in which they agree not to buy, nor put in stock, nor offer for sale, the books of any publisher who declines to co-operate with them in the maintenance of net prices.

Under the circumstances it would be unfortunate for an author to place his books with a publisher who is out of favor with the Booksellers' Association, for the department stores would be unwilling to handle a book that was not on sale by booksellers, as in that case there would be no one to undersell; and the sale of the book would be no longer valuable for advertising purposes.

Considering these facts, it would seem specially desirable for authors to unite at once with us in forming a strong association, for the protection of their mutual interests. It is probable that if such a movement were made by authors they would receive that same effective support from the American Booksellers' Association that has been given by that worthy organization to the founders of the American Publishers' Association. Can authors afford longer to delay action on this burning question?

RECORD PRICES AT AUCTION.

The sale of books at Sotheby's rooms, on March 20, was one of the most remarkable that have taken place for years. A great commotion was caused by the competition for a copy of Caxton's "The Ryal or Royall Book," which Caxton translated and printed in 1484. The bidding started at £1005, and went up rapidly. There was a keen duel between B. F. Stevens and Quaritch for the treasure, which was ultimately secured by Quaritch for $11,125. A copy was sold last year to an American collector for $7750, which up to that time was considered a record price. But the difference in this last instance is fully justified by the beautiful condition of the copy, one of five known, which was entirely uncropped as issued from Caxton's Westminster Press.

Mr. Quaritch was also fortunate in beating all competitors for another Caxton. The rarity was "An indulgence issued by the authority of Pope Sixtus the Fourth for assistance against the Turks," printed by Caxton in 1481. For this Mr. Quaritch paid $1325.

At the same sale Charles Lamb's yellow-covered book, "The King and Queen of Hearts," fetched the amazing price of £222. A first folio Shakespeare sold for £620.

TRANSLATIONS OF THE BIBLE.

Of the 478 ancient and modern translations of the Bible, according to the Review of Reviews, 456 have been made by missionaries, and the annual circulation in what are known as mission fields is over three and a quarter millions of volumes, largely portions, but with nearly ninety-five thousand entire Bibles.

A RIVAL TO GUTENBERG'S "DONATUS."

THE newly-formed Gutenberg-Gesellschaft at Mayence announces as its first publication a facsimile of the printed fragment discovered last year in the National Library at Wiesbaden, which is asserted to be the oldest product extant of Gutenberg's press. This honor has hitherto been claimed for the society called "Donatus," in the National Library at Paris, which bears the date 1451. The recent find, which originally belonged to the monastery at Schönau, is a portion of an astronomical calendar, with exact indications of the ephemerides, the phases of moon, the sun and the planets. It was submitted to the inspection of Professor Bauschinger, the director of the Astronomical Institute in Berlin, who declared that it was undoubtedly calculated for the year 1448.

In addition to the almanac, the volume to be published by the Gutenberg-Gesellschaft will contain facsimiles of similar early pieces with an explanatory text. The object of the publications of the society is to provide material for further investigation, by publishing faithful and exact reproductions with the necessary explanations. It is intended to offer to members of the Gutenberg-Gesellschaft one such volume annually in addition to the annual reports of the Gutenberg Museum, which will also contain important communications from the same field. These publications will be issued to members only, and will not be procurable through the trade.

RABELAISIANA.

AN interesting contribution to the bibliography of Rabelais seems to be made by the sale in Paris, for $2975, of an edition of his great work which was printed in Lyons in 1565. It has hitherto been generally supposed that the first complete edition of the five books of "Gargantua" and "Pantagruel" was that which Jean Martin published in Lyons in 1567. Although this was fourteen years after the supposed date of the author's death, his work was extremely popular; bibliographers have traced at least sixty editions printed before the end of the sixteenth century. "It is therefore not at all surprising," says the editor of the English Library Association Record, "that there should have been earlier editions which have quite or almost perished, literally thumbed to pieces by generations of eager readers. It is practically certain that some peculiarities in the dates of the first publication of the separate books are to be thus explained, otherwise we have to believe that Rabelais wrote the second book of his great work before the first. But it is simpler to suppose, with M. Moland and nearly all the authorities, that some of the earliest editions are still unknown to bibliographers. They may still exist, of course, in some old dusty library, and come to light as this earliest of the complete editions seems to have done. Nothing more, by the way, will be heard of the very early edition of the fifth book of Rabelais—dated 1549—which a Munich bookseller announced that he had discovered some time ago. A learned student of Rabelais has since demonstrated that the book was not his at all, but the work of some unscrupulous imitator trading on the popularity of the 'Gargantua' and 'Pantagruel.'"

THE END OF THE NOVEL.

SCIENCE and the stern reality of life, according to the St. Petersburg Novoye Vremya, "are bound to destroy the novel. It is out of harmony with the scientific and materialistic spirit of the age. The more industrial and strenuous a nation is, the fewer novelists has she; only the backward, the passive, the visionary peoples produce great novelists. The fable, the national tale, the folk-song have died. Why not the novel? It, too, is subject to the law of evolution. It has seen its acme, its highest point, and is on the decline."

OBITUARY NOTES.

PROFESSOR CHARLES W. KEMPER, of the University of Virginia, well known as an educator and as the author of "Kemper's Textbook on Mechanics," died on the 25th inst., at Cuckoo, Va.

WILLIAM F. ANDRUS, for forty-five years connected with the Methodist Book Concern and for a quarter of a century its superintendent, died on the 23d inst. in his seventy-fifth year at his home, 209 Keap Street, Williamsburg, N. Y. He was born in Oneida County, and came to New York when he was a boy.

C. OSBORNE WARD, who wrote a number of books on labor and socialism, died March 19, at Yuma, Arizona. He was born in 1832 in the Western part of New York State, his family removing to Chicago two years later. Mr. Ward was educated at Oberlin College, and early became interested in the cause of the workingman. He made several trips of research to Europe, and was a correspondent of The New York Tribune under Horace Greeley. His first important book, "A Labor Catechism of Political Economy," (1877,) had a large sale among the working classes. His lectures in various parts of the country aroused enthusiasm. In them he advocated the formation of a political party for workingmen on a platform of Government ownership of railroads, telegraphs, and telephones and other radical principles. In 1885 he was appointed translator in the United States Bureau of Labor, which position he held at the time of his death. His others works are "Our Tragedy," a dramatic poem, (1881;) "The Equilibration of Human Aptitudes," (1895;) and a history of the ancient working people, entitled "The Ancient Lowly." The first volume of this work appeared in 1893, and was entitled "Irascibility and Concupiscence;" the second in 1901, entitled "Origins of Socialism." Mr. Ward made trips to Europe in 1892 and 1896, and investigated in Greece, Turkey, and Palestine the numerous recently found inscriptions bearing upon the subject matter in his last work. The labor of producing the second volume of "The Ancient Lowly" undermined his health, and in January last he went to Yuma, hoping to be benefited by a change of climate. Lester F. Ward, the eminent scientist and author, is a brother of the deceased.

CHARLES G. SOWER, president of the Christopher Sower Company, publishers of school books, died at his home, 1926 Arch Street, Philadelphia, early on Sunday morning, March 23, of angina pectoris. Mr. Sower was born in Norristown, Pa., November 21, 1821. He was fifth in descent from Christoph Saur, (or Christopher Sower, as he printed his name in the imprints to his English books,) a tailor of Westphalia, who settled in Germantown, Pa., in 1726, and established the first type foundry and the first manufactory of printer's ink in America, as well as a printing office and paper mill, and who is celebrated for having published in German three editions of the Bible and Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" before either had been published in America in English; and fourth in descent from Christopher Sower 2d, also famous as a Colonial printer, as a bishop of the Dunker church in Germantown, and as the introducer of cast iron stoves in America. His grandfather, David Sower, Sr., and his father, David Sower, Jr., continued printing and publishing in Philadelphia and Germantown, and then removed to Norristown, where Charles G. Sower began to prepare for the succession by entering his father's store in 1836. In 1842 he succeeded his father as head of the business, and in 1844 he removed it to Philadelphia, where it was continued under the firm names successively of Sower & Barnes; Sower, Barnes & Co.; Sower, Barnes & Potts; and Sower, Potts & Co. Finally, in 1888, just one hundred and fifty years after the founding of the business, the firm was incorporated as the Christopher Sower Company, and soon after removed to 614 Arch Street, where it has since continued. Charles G. Sower has remained at the head of the business since 1842. Mr. Sower was a life member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the German Society of Philadelphia, the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, and other liberal and educational institutions.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT TOWNSEND is at present at work on a new play. After its completion she will take up her next novel, "The Destiny of Bettina," which is to be published by the Frederick A. Stokes Company.

FREDERIC HARRISON has retired to private life. He has been a very busy man many years, and is still a very active one at nearly seventy-one. But hereafter he intends to leave the drudgery of expounding Positivism to younger men, and dwell in the country.

GEORGE WHARTON JAMES, the author and scientist, is one of those fortunate individuals who has had the privilege of reading of his own death in the newspapers. Mr. James, according to one account, was fatally bitten in a desperate battle with a gigantic rattlesnake in a curiosity shop in Phœnix, Arizona, February 1. As the author of "In and Around the Grand Canyon" is to lecture in Boston at an early date, the report of his demise is premature, to say the least.

THE Philadelphia Authors' Club, at a second meeting held at the Art Club last week, decided to be known as the Franklin Gun Club. It was also resolved to use the $6000 pledged toward the purchase of a home for the new organization in buying the house at 1218 Chancellor Street, which will be at once prepared for the club's use. Cyrus Townsend Brady, Owen Wister and Joseph H. Coates were elected vice-presidents, the last named to represent the publishers, and a motion was approved limiting the resident membership to 200.

ARTHUR LUMLEY is at work on a publication to be entitled "Early Illustrators of New York." He gives a series of reminiscences from his experiences of art life, and describes the illustrated work that existed in the United States from about 1848 to the present time, showing how the treatment of the black-and-white illustrations kept changing in its character as American life grew broader, also adding sketches of the men who left their mark and have passed away. Perhaps none of our contemporary art workers is so well fitted for this task as Mr. Lumley. A leading Civil War correspondent for Frank Leslie's, he has, from that time to this, been brought into personal contact with all the prominent illustrators of the last half century.

JUSTICE GREENBAUM, of the New York Supreme Court, has issued an order permitting the children of Marion Crawford, the author, to be known as Eleanor Louisa Elizabeth Christophers Marion-Crawford, Harold Francis Marion-Crawford, Bertram Berdan Marion-Crawford, and Claire Marion-Crawford. Their father has long been known to the reading public as Marion Crawford, though his full name is Francis Marion Crawford. The children of the author who have been permitted by the court to use the hyphenated surname of Marion-Crawford are living temporarily in Sorrento, Italy. In their petition to Justice Greenbaum, which was presented through their father, they say: "Your petitioners, feeling just pride in such literary fame as their father has achieved, desire the right to continue the use of the name of their father as he is known to the public at large, and the interests of your petitioners will be substantially promoted by the change prayed for."

AUTHORS, according to the New York Sun, "like sailors, lawyers, bareback riders, preachers and balloonists, are wont to declare pathetically that their own particular profession is the most wearing craft in the world. Here is one who thinks differently. He is Henry Wallace Phillips, who has tried pretty much everything else and has fallen back on writing, because he says it is the easiest mode of making a living yet invented by the human brain. Mr. Phillips began as a paperstand keeper, gravitated into the furniture business, then went into a flour mill, and thence to a ranch where he punched cattle and acquired a vocabulary (most of which he has been unable to use in print) exhorting government mules to keep in the straight and narrow path of commerce. Next he became a watchman; then a deputy auditor, feeder in a gold stamping plant, prospector, chemist, and cowboy; then went to Boston and landed in a wild west show on the strength of his long hair and picturesque attire. After a time he took to writing, made a hit with some modern fables in Life, and presently began to get stories accepted by the magazines, and has been getting them accepted ever since. His first book, 'Red Saunders,' which is published this week by McClure, Phillips & Co., is born of his western experiments."

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE BUREAU OF AMERICAN REPUBLICS has issued "A list of books, magazine articles and maps relating to Central America, including the republics of Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and Salvador, 1800-1900," prepared by P. Lee Phillips, chief of Division of Maps and Charts in the Library of Congress. (109 p. 8°.)

W. M. VOYNICH'S new catalogue—the seventh—brings the number of entries up to 3163, and his extraordinary good luck in securing little-known and undescribed books seems as great as ever. The notes, as the London Athenaeum truly says, "are enough to make Brunet and all the other bibliographers turn in their graves." Among the English books printed before 1640 quite the most interesting is a copy of G. de la Mothe's "The French Alphabet," 1595, which was once in the possession of W. Herbert, and was described by Ames, but which has from that period been unseen by any bibliographer, and is at the present moment unique. Both titles are reproduced in facsimile by Mr. Voynich, the book itself having passed into the collection of H. Hannen. The catalogue includes over eighty books printed at various continental centres up to 1500, and over 100 books printed between 1501 and 1525, many undescribed, and only a few of them in the British Museum.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Abram De Blaey, who has for nearly fourteen years conducted a book and stationery business at 31 and 33 State Street, will, on May 1, remove to 52 State Street, corner of Green, where he will have larger and more commodious quarters, so much needed for his growing business.

CLEVELAND, O.—The Arthur H. Clark Company has just been incorporated for $75,000. The company will engage in publishing and bookselling, the bookselling being more particularly the old, rare and imported books. Mr. A. H. Clark, the president of the company, was for the past nine years manager of the publishing and of the old and rare book departments of The Burrows Bros. Co., and during the past five years a director of the same. Before connecting himself with the Burrows Brothers Company he was with A. C. McClurg & Co., in Chicago, and previous to that with Henry Sotheran & Co., in London, England.

GRAND HAVEN, MICH.—Harvey L. White has purchased an interest in the book and stationery business of D. H. Lane, and the firm will be known in the future as Lane & White. The concern was started by Mr. Lane fourteen years ago, and has become recognized as one of the leading stores in that part of the State.

NEW YORK CITY.—Frank A. Munsey, publisher of Munsey's Magazine, The Argosy, The Washington Daily Times and The New York Daily News, announces that he has incorporated his magazine and newspaper interests under the name of the Frank A. Munsey Company. The capital stock of the company is to be $10,000,000, divided into 100,000 shares of $100 each. Of this total Mr. Munsey states that he will retain "at least fifty odd thousand shares" for himself, thus assuring to himself control. The balance is offered to the public at par. Dividends will be paid quarterly, and will begin to accrue from April 1, 1902. Apropos of the offer to sell, Mr. Munsey says that he has "employed no underwriters to dispose of the stock, and shall not part with a share at less than par. At this price," adds Mr. Munsey, "it paid me last year 7 per cent., and this is a higher rate of interest than I should be likely to get on anything that is equally good." In the circular containing the terms of the offer it is set out that the net profit of Munsey's Magazine for the year just closed, 1901, was $698,615.21. The earnings of The Argosy do not appear, but it is said that its circulation is now 265,000 copies, and that its net earnings for last year were double the amount of the preceding year, and that this year they promise to be double last year's figures. The New York Daily News, according to the circular, has earned for a good many years an average net profit of over $100,000 annually. A line of expansion marked out for the future of the business is the addition of a book section, either by the creation of this department or by buying out an established business.

NEW YORK CITY.—In announcing the incorporation of the New Amsterdam Book Company we were misled in giving the names of the incorporators and officers. They are as follows: William T. Henderson, president; R. W. Douglas, secretary; and A. G. Dickinson, Jr., treasurer.

NEW YORK CITY.—M. Pfister is selling out his book business and combining his bindery with that of William Launder under the firm name of The Launder-Pfister Bookbindery Co.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—John W. and James O. Fairbanks have bought the Whitlock bookstore.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE trade will be pleased to learn that H. A. Dickerman & Son, of Boston, Mass., and Charles H. Doscher, of New York, have suspended hostilities against the American Publishers' Association, and have agreed to abide by the articles of the Association relating to maintaining the prices of new copyright books.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

BONNELL, SILVER & Co., New York, will publish immediately "Sir Walter of Kent," a romance of the Elizabethan period, by Julius A. Lewis.

FERRIS & LEACH, Philadelphia, have just published an interesting genealogical volume entitled "Early Settlers of Nantucket," by Lydia S. Hinchman.

THE EXCELSIOR PUBLISHING HOUSE (McKeon & Schofield,) will publish at once "A B C of Electrical Experiments," by Professor W. J. Clarke, with 146 illustrations.

QUAIL & WARNER, New York, will publish on the 1st of April "Young Howson's Wife," by Andrew E. Watrous, upon the proof of which he was busy at the time of his death.

MR. EBEN WILMOT, who for some years past has been engaged with Helman-Taylor Co., of Cleveland, O., recently resigned his position with that firm to accept an appointment with the George W. Jacobs Co., of Philadelphia, and has already entered upon his new duties.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish in April a new novel by Charles Felton Pidgin, entitled "Stephen Holton," which has for its theme homely modern life, mainly in New England. Mr. Pidgin has become widely known through his "Quincy Adams Sawyer," which is now being produced at the Boston Theatre.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish on April 5 Cyrus Townsend Brady's historical romance of the time of Barbarossa, entitled "Hohenzollern," which originally appeared serially in The Century Magazine under the title of "Barbarossa." The story has been dramatized for James K. Hackett, who is to play the hero.

JAMES POTT & Co. will publish at once a timely little volume entitled "Miniature and Window Gardening," by Phœbe Allen and Dr. Godfrey, which gives in simple and comprehensible form the latest and best advice in respect to everything connected with what may be summed up under the general head of domestic horticulture.

LEE & SHEPARD publish this week "Rockhaven," a new novel by Charles Clark Munn, author of "Uncle Terry," etc., with illustrations by Frank T. Merrill; also, "The Correspondents' Manual," by William E. Hickox, a "praxis" for stenographers, typewriters, operators and clerks, comprising practical information on letter taking and letter writing, with hints how to do it and how not to do it.

ELDER & SHEPARD, San Francisco, Cal., have in preparation a third edition of Dr. Edward Robeson Taylor's versions of "The Sonnets of Heredia," which was first published in 1898. They will also publish in connection with the performance of Sophocles's "Antigone" at Stanford University a new prose translation of the tragedy prepared by Professors Fairclough and Murray, both of the Stanford University.

THE HOME PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish immediately a new story by Colonel Richard Henry Savage, entitled "For a Young Queen's Bright Eyes." It is a story of the exciting times in Italy when Ferdinand II., in 1859, left Naples. The intrigues of the second wife of Ferdinand II. to seat her son, Count of Trani, on the throne, the betrayal of Garibaldi, the inner life of the vast palace of Caserta, etc., are vividly described.

R. H. RUSSELL has in preparation a series of the French romances of William Morris, to be published in five little volumes, with illustrations and ornamental borders, by Louis Rhead, appropriate to the spirit of the pieces. The first to appear will be "The History of Over Sea." At intervals of about two months will follow "The Tale of King Constans the Emperor," "The Friendship of Amis and Amile," "The Tale of King Florus" and "The Fair Jehane."

THE SOCIETE DES BIBLIOPHILES FRANÇAIS, at Paris, has in hand the publication of a whole group of manuscripts of St. Augustine's "City of God," illuminated by artists of the middle and end of the fifteenth century. Numerous reproductions, taken from the manuscripts of the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris and those of The Hague, Nantes, Mâcon, etc., will be included in this important work. The volume is expected at the end of this year.

LEWIS, SCRIBNER & Co., New York, will publish shortly a volume entitled "Opportunities in the Colonies and Cuba," made up of contributions by M. E. Beall, of the Division of Insular Affairs, who writes on the Philippines; Charles H. Allen, ex-Governor of Porto Rico, who writes of that island; and others who contribute articles on Hawaii, Guam and St. Thomas. The introduction to the volume is by General Leonard Wood, under whose supervision the section on Cuba has been prepared.

RANDOLPH R. BEAM, 14 West Twenty-second Street, New York, will publish for The Triptych a little book entitled "Women Designers of Book Plates," by Wilbur Macey Stone, a brief essay on the work accomplished by women in this field of design, and a check list of upwards of 150 women designers. The book contains 36 illustrations of book plates designed by women, including a copper frontispiece by Mrs. Agnes Castle. The edition is limited to 400 copies, 100 being on Japanese vellum.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish shortly a new story by Miss A. C. Laut, author of "Lords of the North," entitled "A Diana of the Snows," a romance of the days of Radisson, that picturesque adventurer, whose life of strange experiences, quarrels, captivity and perilous explorations was crowned by his delivery of the Empire of the North to England instead of to France. They have also nearly ready in the Great Commanders Series a biography of General Forrest, the Confederate cavalry leader, by Captain J. Harvey Mathes.

WILLIAM ABBATT, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York, will bring out, as soon as a reasonable number of subscriptions shall have been received, a new, revised and improved edition of Winthrop Sargent's "The Life and Career of Major John André," originally published in 1861 by Ticknor & Fields, but long out of print and scarce. The edition will contain ten or more illustrations, mostly new, including a portrait and biography of Mr. Sargent, and a map of André's route. The edition will be limited—probably to 500 copies, 75 of which will be on large paper.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have just ready "The Hours of the Passion, and other poems," by Harriot E. Hamilton King, whose "Ugo Bassi's Sermons in the Hospital" were widely read a few years ago. The volume is an especially interesting one for Easter. They are about to publish a work entitled "Labor Legislation, Labor Movements and Labor Leaders," by an English observer, Judge Howell, which contains, besides the matter directly pertaining to his subject, many references to the English controversies over the American Civil War, in which he took part.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS Co. have just published a little volume entitled "How to Get Acquainted with God—the Meaning of the Christian Science Movement," by Theodore F. Seward, the originator of the Brotherhood of Christian Unity, the Don't Worry Clubs and the Golden Rule Brotherhood. Like all of Mr. Seward's books, the present work treats of the laws of the Divine Immanence, or "God with us." His answer to the question, "How can we become acquainted with God?" is: "By becoming acquainted with love. Only through the manifestation of love toward our fellow-men can we understand the ways of God's love toward us."

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have in preparation a new book by Booker T. Washington, entitled "The Making of Character," a series of talks directed especially to the negro race, though not without its general application. At the suggestion of Bram Stoker, whose book, "A Mystery of the Sea," is about to be published by them, Doubleday, Page & Co. will hereafter furnish libraries with copies of popular books in special half leather bindings, reinforced and sewed, at the same price as their regular bindings. This, if adopted generally, would be a boon to libraries, who would thus be spared the trouble and expense of rebinding books that have any circulation whatever.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish on the 2d of April "The Banquet Book," by Cuyler Reynolds, which, according to its sub-title, will be "A Collection of Quotations, Designed for General Reference and also as an aid in the preparation of the Toast-List, the After-Dinner Speech, and the Occasional Address, together with Suggestions Concerning the Menu and other Details Connected with the Proper Ordering of the Banquet." They will bring out at the same time "The Story of the Vine," by Edward R. Emerson, a monograph on vines and vine-cultivation. They expect to publish within two weeks "Morchester: a Story of American Society, Politics and Affairs," by Charles Datchet.

CHARLES E. GOODSPEED, 5a Park Street, Boston, Mass., announces for publication, about April 10, an essay by Thoreau originally written for The Dial, but declined by Margaret Fuller, who was then editing that periodical. This essay, edited by F. B. Sanborn, with introduction and notes, will make about fifty pages, and will be issued in a style uniform with Mr. Sanborn's "The Personality of Thoreau," which is now out of print. The edition will be limited to 500 copies on toned French hand-made paper, and 22 copies on Japan paper. The edition promises to be largely sold before publication, orders having already been received for more than two-thirds of the number to be published.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY announce a new series of popular books to be known as The Favorite Library, to retail at twenty-five cents, trade price seven cents. The following ten titles are now ready: "Witch Hazel," by Mrs. Georgie Sheldon; "Hidden Hand," by Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth; "She Loved Him," by Charles Garvice; "Lady Evelyn," by May Agnes Fleming; "English Orphans," by Mary J. Holmes; "Ishmael," by Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth; "Beulah," by Augusta J. Evans; "Virgie's Inheritance," by Mrs. Georgie Sheldon; "Struggle for Love," by Bertha M. Clay; and "Pascarel," by Ouida. Other popular fiction by well-known authors will be published in this series at the rate of a title a day.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have nearly ready a work on London as described by great writers and travellers, edited by Esther Singleton, author of "A Guide to the Opera," etc. The volume will be profusely illustrated. They will issue early next month the first volume of their "New International Encyclopædia," a work which has been in active preparation for about four years, under the editorial management of Dr. Daniel Coit Gilman, Professor Harry Thurston Peck and Professor Frank Moore Colby. They will publish during the summer Sir Walter Besant's last novel, "No Other Way," a story of life in England in the time when those unhappy persons who found themselves in debt had to spend their days in the Poor Side of the King's Bench Prison in London.

WILLIAM HARVEY MINER, for some years manager of the miscellaneous department of H. W. Lowdermilk & Co., of Washington, D. C., has taken charge of the rare book department—the "Rowfant Corner"—of the Burrows Brothers Company, of Cleveland, O., succeeding A. H. Clark, who has gone into the book business on his own account. Mr. Miner is well known to the trade through his seven years' connection with the E. P. Judd Co., of New Haven, Conn., as the travelling representative in the East for D. Appleton & Co., and his connection with the old book department of Dodd, Mead & Co. He is a thorough bookman and booklover, and has done some good bibliographic work in a bibliography of Daniel Boone, and a bibliography of the Lewis and Clark expedition.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have just ready "Owens College Historical Essays," edited by Professors T. F. Tout and James Tait; also, in connection with Mr. Edward Arnold, "Finland: its Public and Private Economy," by N. C. Frederickson, formerly Professor of Political Economy in Copenhagen University. Next week they expect to bring out "Christ the Way," a volume of four addresses by Francis Paget, Lord Bishop of Oxford; "The Sea-Coast: Destruction, Littoral Drift, Protection," by W. H. Wheeler; "The Foraminifera," an introduction to the study of the protozoa, by Frederick Chapman; "Animal Activities, a first book in zoology," by Nathaniel S. French; and new and cheaper editions of "The History of Trade Unionism" and "Industrial Democracy," by Sidney and Beatrice Webb.

THE BANKS LAW PUBLISHING CO., New York, will shortly publish "The Treaty-Making Power of the United States," by Charles Henry Butler, of the New York bar. The work will be in two volumes, which will be arranged as follows: Volume I.—Part I., The United States is a Nation; Part II., Historical Review of the Treaty-Making Power of the United States; Insular Cases Appendix, Containing Abstracts of All Insular Cases Decided in May and December, 1901, with Analysis of Cases Cited in Arguments, Briefs and Decisions. Volume II.—Part III., Judicial Decisions Affecting the Treaty-Making Power of the United States, Its Extent and Limitations; Treaties Appendix, Containing a List of All Treaties, Diplomatic Agreements, Protocols, Modi Vivendi with the Proclamations Affecting Foreign Powers, Arranged Alphabetically According to Countries.

IN the general revival of interest in the writings of Balzac, which is so evident in the many new editions and anthologies of the great French novelists, three of his books do not seem to have received the attention they merit, nor has their connection with each other nor their relation to his complete works been readily recognized. In "The Magic Skin," "Louis Lambert" and "Seraphita" is a condensation of all that is more elaborately detailed in the complete "Human Comedy" and with special regard to man's spiritual nature and its development. Their interpretation in "The Metaphysics of Balzac," by Ursula N. Gestefeld, published by the Gestefeld Publishing Co., of Pelham, N. Y., forms a book that all lovers of Balzac will enjoy and appreciate, while those who have held aloof from this French master can in no better way than by reading this little volume get an insight into his grasp of human life and action and the incisiveness of his analytical power.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish W. W. Jacobs's new book, "At Sunwich Port," referred to in our issue for March 22. They have also in preparation six stories by Paul Bourget, to be published under the title of "Monica and Other Stories." The dedication is to Mrs. Edith Wharton—recalling the fact that Mrs. Wharton's "The Valley of Decision" is dedicated to M. and Mme. Bourget. The stories are all about women. They will publish in this country Mr. E. Marston's new volume, "Sketches of Some Booksellers of the Time of Dr. Johnson," with a photogravure of the Doctor and other portraits. Much new matter has been added to the sketches since they appeared in the London Publishers' Circular. They have also secured the American edition of the next volume in the Goupil series of illustrated historical memoirs—one on Henry VIII., by A. F. Pollard, based upon a thorough examination of both the old and the new material. It is designed to set forth no theory, ecclesiastical or other, to point no particular moral, and to serve no polemical purpose. Its sole object is to delineate the character, to trace the life, and to describe the policy of Henry VIII.

TO BE ISSUED IMMEDIATELY

For a Young Queen's Bright Eyes

A NOVEL

BY COL. RICHARD HENRY SAVAGE

THE closing days of the life of Bomba, Ferdinand II., in 1859, left Naples literally on the verge of a volcano.

His haughty second wife, (an Austrian Royal Archduchess), used every dark intrigue to seat her own spirited son, the Count of Trani on the throne, in place of the melancholy Bombino, afterwards Francis II.; the Crown Prince and the last King of the Two Sicilies.

The betrayal of the dashing Garibaldi, the inner life of the vast palace of Caserta, the dazzling whirl of San Carlo,—all these lurid scenes are painted with a masterly touch! The fierce "lazzaroni," the wild "Camorristas," the motley circus of Garibaldi's followers, all the scenes of the wild downfall of the House of Bourbon are unveiled, with the jealousies of the Sardinian and Neapolitan generals, which sent the heroic young Queen of Naples to Paris as a royal fugitive! Written from studies amid the scenes of the closing days of the most reckless and corrupt court of modern times, this dashing novel is a revelation of intrigues which baffled even the Pope, the great Cavour and the Court of Austria. It is a work of surpassing interest and a love story reflecting the wild recklessness of the Neapolitan populace and royal family. State papers and diplomatic inner history have been ransacked to furnish the startling sensations of this unequalled picture of the last days of Bomba, the modern Nero.

PUBLISHERS who safeguard crevices through which high binding bills creep, are ultimately bound to lead the procession in the onward march of progress. Just stop long enough in the whirl of your busy hours to consider the vast importance and advantage to your interests which a connection with me implies. A line to me either to call or submit samples and estimates will have the desired effect. The annual sum total I am positive I can save you in your binding account is sufficient to provide a dividend, the amount of which some of the best publishers don't earn. In spite of being your lowest bidder I will give you the highest character of work, employing only the highest priced labor, thus obtaining the best possible results. My plant and facilities are unequalled. Don't allow yourselves to be blinded by cant and misrepresentation. The constant hum of my busy plant is a sufficient answer to those who disregard the broad plane of justice and equality. Even those publishers who have their own plants find that I can do their work cheaper and better than they can produce it themselves.

The Annual American Catalogue

Cumulated 1900-1901

This volume includes in one alphabet the short title lists of the books of 1900 and 1901, giving the information by author, title, subject and series. This cumulation is to continue annually until a five-yearly volume of "The American Catalogue" in its new shape is reached. It is hoped that this form of catalogue will prove a desirable, practical working tool for the trade, supplementing as it will do, from year to year, the last issue of the five-yearly "American Catalogue," without the need of consulting several alphabets in several volumes.

THE BEST OF FICTION

"A domestic novel in which will be found the most attractive elements of Southern life."—N. Y. Journal.

"Just such a homely story as appeals to those who are tired of problem novels."—Western Trade Journal.

TOLD BY THE DEATH'S HEAD

By MAURUS JOKAI

Translated by S. E. BOGGS

A unique departure from the ordinary historical novel.

The story opens with the betrayal of a fort by Hugo, the hero, who postpones his sentence for his traitorous act by relating his life-story, one full of brave deeds, exciting scenes, narrow escapes, mad follies, and thrilling experiences. Although accused of twenty-one crimes, he wins the sympathy and approval of the entire court by his charming manner and fascinating tales of adventures.

Humorous and entertaining, it will please all classes of readers.

THE SIGN OF THE PROPHET

BY

DR. JAMES BALL NAYLOR

"Seldom has any author better caught the spirit of the times, the atmosphere of the era, or the vernacular of the people. Each of his characters move as a living being in these strongly characterful pages, and the author of 'Ralph Marlowe' is thereby endeared to new thousands."—Boston Globe.

"One puts it down after an absorbed perusal with the feeling of having walked and talked amid ideal surroundings, with strikingly real men and women."—Philadelphia North American.

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

RALPH MARLOWE

BY

DR. JAMES BALL NAYLOR

"The author is very skilful in the difficult art of character-drawing, and his descriptions of life in this typical country village are charming."—San Francisco Call.

"Jep Tucker's stories alone are worth the price of the book."—N. Y. Press.

"The story is worthy to take its place beside the best of those written in recent years that take as their particular task the picturing of life in the rural districts of the middle west."—Review of Reviews.
